GIRL QUEEN OF PIRATES TO HANG THEM

Captain Tapham, of Revenue Cutter Keokuk, Reports Capture of Marauders.

MOBILE, Oct. 18.—The Cleveland wireless brought a message which told the chapter headlines and a few faint, tantalizing lines of a romance worthy of the pen of Robert Louis Stevenson, or any other of the romancers who have explored the wild tragedies of the sea and the life of the South Sea Islands.

From the revenue cutter Keokuk, Captain Tapham sends word that the chase he has been making for months after the pirate band of "blackbirds" who for years have been terrorizing the smaller islands of the South Sea has been successful. He has captured them to a man, after a hard struggle.

Girl Adored by Blackbirds. Among them to its amazement and horror he discovered a beautiful Spaniard, Estelle D'Orsay, and her husband, who had been captured and carried off by the pirates and now she was being held captive on the island. "While my work is interesting and does not grow monotonous, it is really fun," she says.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—"The greatest book in the Bible and in the world is the gospel of John," declared Sir William Ramsay, Britain's foremost authority on sacred history, at the Moody Church.

The gospel of John was written after his release when John was in a state of mind and back to his last work. The gospel of John is the only one of the four which is not written in the Greek language.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—After having destroyed something like $1,500,000 in real money since May, 1912, Miss Louise Lester, of the Treasury Department, still likes her job, although it is a "messy" one, and hopes to keep it up to the time of her marriage.

WILSON HAS WEEDY FOR HE CAN PASS HIS PET BILL

Fear That Drastic Action Will Distract Attention From Currency Measure Prompts His Peaceful Policy Regarding Mexico.

Administration Refuses to Deal Longer With Provisional President and Dictator, and Is Expected to Aid Constitutionalists.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—The temperate attitude of the Wilson Administration in dealing with the Mexican situation has been due altogether to the fact that a drastic policy would interfere with the Democratic program of currency and other legislative reforms. This is openly admitted in Washington.

Because the Administration has not much more to its legislative program than the currency measure, it has decided not to distract attention from it by drawing attention to the Mexican situation.

In consequence, further efforts will be made to deal peacefully with the situation, according to the tacit understanding for which President Wilson himself furnishes the basis.

The Administration is not ready to deal no longer with the Mexican situation and quiet in the stormy republic.

Now that all attempts to bring Mexico into a state of reason have failed, the Washington powers probably will appeal from the Federal to the Constitutionalists, President Wilson has indicated that he is determined to deal no longer with the Mexican situation.

U. S. May Aid Huerta's Foes.

The new steps probably will be in the direction of assistance to the Constitutionalists, who are opposed to Huerta and the Federal. An opportunity will be given the Constitutionalists to compose the situation.

It is believed that, although the Constitutionalists are out of power, they will be able to bring about peace by a combination of force and by the aid of the United States.

These reports, and the news that the Administration is willing to recognize the policy of the Constitutionalists, are based on the apparently friendly attitude assumed by a number of Administration officials toward them since Huerta came out with his proclamation of dictatorship.

President Wilson and Secretary Bryan have been apprised of this feeling, and it is likely that they will be influenced by it to some extent, in some of the persons who favor strongly the Constitutionalists and whose advice the President and his Secretary of State have depended on.

The dealings with the Constitutionalists, however, will be informal and will not take the shape of a definite recognition. They are another means to the end of bringing about peace in the situation.

'Break Bone' Fever Sweeps Savannah

Measles Blamed for 6,000 Cases. Epidemic Checked by Cold Weather.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 18.—Savannah health officers are battling the worst epidemic of dengue, or "break bone" fever in the city's history, a conservative estimate placing the number of cases in the city at 6,000, according to Dr. C. H. Laidley, in charge of the marine hospital here.

"It is caused by the mosquito," said the chairman of the health committee of Council. "And as the cold weather has about exterminated him, this year, I think it is about all over. The disease is unpleasant, but that is all. No one ever has died from it. It comes up from the tropics with the trade and every fall or three years there is an epidemic of it. Doctors don't know the cause, nor any cure. It usually runs its course of a week or ten days at the outside."

Can Not Drive Auto Except With Parents

Two San Francisco Youths Arrested for Speeding Are Given Unique Sentence.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 18.—When William Magee, Jr., aged 18 years, and Harry, his brother, aged 16, sons of William Magee, a real estate man, drive their father's automobile against their will, they must be accompanied by one of their parents. The sentence stands for six months.

This was the sentence given by Judge Sweeney in Oakland when the boys appeared in police court for speeding.

Father Takes Twins In Wicker Suit Case

Goos Indians One Better by Having Upper and Lower Berths for Papooses.

GOOSE, UTAH, Oct. 18.—"Necessity is the mother of invention" was illustrated by a Chicago man on route to San Francisco with his family. He carried a wicker-work arrangement for holding his twin babies while on the train. It was designed by him.

It was only a trifle taller than an ordinary suit case and had two compartments, an upper and a lower berth. In each compartment was a twin baby two months old, and each apparently was contented.

Mrs. Guinness May Be Brought Back

Indiana Official on Mission of Mystery to Locate Ailing Sister of Twelve Persons.

LA PORTE, Ind., Oct. 18.—The press have a faint hope that Mrs. Belle Guinness, who, after murdering twelve people, disappeared eight years ago, may be living. The house in which she lived was burned, with her three children.

William Meeker, chief of police, and W. W. Wenden, attorney, were on a mysterious mission which proved to be a trip in an effort to locate the woman.

Watson, Near Trial, Charges Plot

Says Catholics Joined to Quiet Him

Mail Abuse Case Begins Monday

THOMAS E. WATSON, once Bryan's running mate, who faces trial on a charge of mailing obscene matter, below he is shown with his daughter, Georgia, four years old, and on the right, Georgia Lee, also four years old.

Georgia Editor, Once Populist Presidential Candidate, Ready to Fight Accusations.

AUGUSTA, Oct. 18.—Thomas E. Watson, editor of The Jeffersonian publication, former nominee of the Populist party for President of the United States, running mate of William J. Bryan on the same party ticket in 1896, lawyer and author, will be placed on trial here tomorrow upon a Federal indictment charging him, with sending obscene matter through the mails.

The Government's case will be handled by United States District Attorney Alexander Akerman, of Macon, assisted by Arthur H. Adlington, of the Federal Department of Justice. Mr. Watson will be defended by Colonel Gray McLendon, of Atlanta, former Railroad Commissioner, candidate for Governor and lifelong friend of the accused. Judge Rufus H. Foster will preside. Judge Sweeney being disqualified.

Mr. Watson was indicted by a Federal Grand Jury on November 12, 1912, upon three counts, alleging that in the April, May and July numbers of the Jeffersonian Magazine he sent by mail obscene matter through the mails.

The sentences imposed to be taken under the Federal law, and, in effect, Mr. Watson's trial was a long struggle. Mr. Watson was a long struggle. Mr. Watson was a long struggle. Mr. Watson was a long struggle.

Questions Relate to Church. The sentences imposed to be taken under the Federal law, and, in effect, Mr. Watson's trial was a long struggle. Mr. Watson was a long struggle. Mr. Watson was a long struggle.

Several weeks before Mr. Watson was indicted he was arrested upon a Federal warrant charging him with the same offense, and at the hearing upon this warrant much of the same case was developed.

This hearing, obviously enough, was held before United States Commissioner Walter H. Goodwin, in Augusta, which is near Mr. Watson's country home, and Goodwin later committed him to the custody of the sheriff at the prison in Savannah by sending him through the heart.

At the first hearing it was established that the matter complained of was obscene circulated through the mails.

M'REYNOLDS BREAKS ALL RECORDS AS FIRST AID TO MONOPOLIES

Attorney General Hasn't Dissolved a Single Trust, but Has Helped Ten in Last Seven Months. Worse Than Ballinger in Delay.

Stiffest Greatest Victory Ever Won for People Before U. S. Supreme Court by Action in the Union Pacific Dissolution Case.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—All records for "first aid to trusts" have been broken by the Department of Justice under the administration of Attorney General McReynolds.

During the seven months he has been in charge of the Government's campaign for fighting monopolies the Attorney General's notable accomplishments—exclusive of the number of trusts dissolved—include as follows:

Number of trusts dissolved—NONE. Number of trusts or other influential defendants which have received "first aid"—TEN.

The only other Cabinet officer in the history of the United States who approached the present Attorney General in this respect was former Secretary of the Interior Ballinger, and the record indicates that he was not even a close second.

Here is the record:

1. UNION PACIFIC-SOUTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD CASE.—The United States Supreme Court, in coming to the Union Pacific Railroad Company to dissolve of $124,000,000 of the stock of the Southern Pacific, under the Sherman anti-trust law, has given the Government a victory which is the most important in the history of the United States.

The Supreme Court ordered the Union Pacific to proceed to dissolve the stock of the Southern Pacific, and the Government, through the Attorney General, has secured the plan, although, contrary to the expressed wishes of President Wilson, he withdrew his request for a full hearing.

Mr. McReynolds forfeited the right to appeal the case by consenting to the entry of a decree by the Supreme Court, and it can not be reversed except by special action on the part of Congress.

2. THE ANTHRACITE COAL CASE.—McReynolds began this during the time Wickersham was Attorney General. The latter assigned him to the case.

The first proceedings were taken under the Federal law, and, in effect, Mr. McReynolds took the case, with the same U. S. Circuit Court, to the Supreme Court.

Part of the responsibility for the doubtful victory was laid to failure on the part of McReynolds to draw his property. Now, in 1913, although the proceedings were begun originally in 1907, the Attorney General has just filed a bill against the five coal companies concerned, which complies in form and manner of procedure with the rules established for such cases by the Supreme Court in 1907. In other words, he has just made a fair beginning in the case.

3. THE INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER TRUST CASE.—This case was partly settled by Attorney General Wickersham. A compromise was proposed, Wickersham thereupon agreed to a list of conditions for the Harvester Trust to subscribe to, but they were so binding and so favorable to the Government that the trust decided it could better afford to sue through the courts.

This suit, which was begun during

M'KEYHOLDS BREARS ALL RECORDS AS ATTORNEY GENERAL

Attorney General Hasn't Dissolved a Single Trust, but Has Helped Ten in Last Seven Months. Worse Than Ballinger in Delay.

Stifles Greatest Victory Ever Won for People Before U. S. Supreme Court by Action in the Union Pacific Dissolution Case.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—All records for "first aid to trust" have been broken by the Department of Justice under the administration of Attorney General McKeyholds. In the seven months he has been in charge of the Government's efforts to fight the monopolies, the Attorney General's notable accomplishments—exclusive of the number of proceedings instituted—amount to:

Number of trusts dissolved—NONE. Number of trusts or other influential defendants which have received first aid—TEN.

The only other Cabinet officer in the history of the United States who approached the present Attorney General in this respect was Attorney General Ballinger, and the record indicates that he was not as good as McKeyholds.

Here is the record: UNION PACIFIC-SOUTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD CASE.—The United States brought suit to compel the Union Pacific Railroad Company to dissolve the 312,000 shares of the stock of the Southern Pacific under the Sherman anti-trust law. Attorney General William Taft entered the Union Pacific suit to dissolve the trust of the stock. The lawyers for the Union Pacific then sued to stop the suit and submitted it to the new Attorney General of the United States, Mr. McKeyholds. He dropped the plan, although, contrary to the expressed wishes of President Wilson, he withdrew his request for a restraining order.

In the case of this Attorney General McKeyholds forfeited the right to appeal the case by consenting to a decree by the Circuit Court and it can not be reopened except by special action on the part of Congress.

This is effectively stilled what is considered the greatest victory ever won in the Supreme Court by the people. The man who represented the Union Pacific in the latter part of the remarkable proceeding, E. Carroll Todd, has been promoted by his chief to the position of First Assistant Attorney General, in full charge of the "trust-busting" work of the department.

THE ANTHRACITE COAL CASE.—McKeyholds began this during the time William Taft was Attorney General. The latter assigned him to the task.

The law proceedings were taken under the Hepburn rate law, and in effect, McKeyholds lost the suit. Then, with the same E. Carroll Todd, he filed a bill under the Sherman anti-trust law, charging conspiracy. After a long struggle, McKeyholds won a victory from the Supreme Court.

Part of the responsibility for the defeat of the Hepburn rate law was laid to the part of McKeyholds to draw the suit properly. Now, in 1913, although the proceedings were begun in 1907, the Attorney General had just filed a bill against the coal companies concerned, which would in form and manner of proceeding with the rules established for such cases by the Supreme Court. In other words, he has just made a fair beginning in the case. And the result of the case has been a gain.

THE INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER TRUST CASE.—This case was nearly settled by Attorney General Wickham. A compromise was proposed. Wickham threatened to drop the suit to the International Harvester Trust to subscribe to, but the trust refused to do so, and the Government that the trust could not afford to fight the suit, which was begun nearly a year ago.

Baby Is Heiress to $40,000 Gold Mine

Uncle Never Knew Child to Whom He Left Fortune Was Even Born.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—Baby Cathryn Mulcaire, of Rosemont, Ill., is an heiress and the owner of a mining claim in Alaska, through an uncle she has never seen, and whose name she is not old enough to say. Thirteen years ago, in New Orleans, Howard Mulcaire married Ellen Riley, sister of James H. Riley, of Omaha. Mulcaire and his bride moved to Illinois and Riley went to the Klondike. Two years ago the Mulcaires moved to Rosemont, and a year later, three months before Baby Cathryn appeared, Howard Mulcaire died. Riley also died recently and left a $40,000 mining claim to "Howard Mulcaire or his offspring." Cathryn is the only offspring.

Clock Runs for 43 Years; Never Wound

Timepiece at Carville, Pa., Operated by Battery Made of Two Metal Plates.

CARLEIGH, Pa., Oct. 18.—Daniel Drawbaugh, a pioneer electrical inventor, built a clock which is running here in the office of his son, Charles H. Drawbaugh. The clock has run since 1870 and operates without winding. The pendulum, weighing 45 pounds, is operated by an ordinary electro-magnet and a permanent magnet armature, the current in the electro-magnet being received as it passes the armature. The battery consists of a plate of copper and one of iron which are buried in the earth. These plates give enough current to keep the pendulum swinging.

Comet Back After 61 Years' Absence

Westphal's Entry in Astral Feat. All Flashes Past Post on Time.

FRANK TO FIGHT ON WEDNESDAY FOR NEW TRIAL

Charges of Bias Against Jurors Will Play Leading Part in Arguments.

DEFENSE OPPOSES DELAY

Judge Roan and Solicitor Dorsey Also Urge Haste—State Has Big Task.

The way was cleared Saturday for the actual beginning of the fight over the motion to give Leo M. Frank, convicted of the murder of Mary Phagan, a new trial. The battle will open before Judge Roan Wednesday with both sides armed for a vigorous contest. In which charges against jurors accused of bias will play a large part. The defense, headed by Luther Z. Roser, relies in large part on the evidence showing that Juror A. H. Henkle expressed violent animus to Frank before the trial opened, refusing a new trial for the prisoner. Roser of Atlanta will be introduced to uphold the character of the witnesses who swear that Henkle said he was sure Frank was guilty and would like to see him hanged. On the other hand, the State will be prepared to submit a number of witnesses, and they will try to show through Henkle himself that the statements against Frank were expressed after the trial.

Will Exchange All Papers.

Wednesday, as had been announced in the Georgian, was formally fixed for the opening of the arguments by Judge Roan Saturday. At the same time the defense and State agreed to exchange all new papers in the case. A number of important documents, it is said, have not yet been made public.

In the discussion of the case, Mr. Roser made the offer to exchange all affidavits for the new papers in the case of the State, and Solicitor Dorsey agreed.

While declaring that delay undoubtedly would benefit their client, Luther Roser, for the defense, urged that the motion be brought to a speedy hearing.

He pointed out that he had been neglecting his civil business for the Frank case, and said that if the fight over the new motion were not disposed of by Monday a week he would have to ask that he be set aside so that he could take up some of his other work.

Judge Roan Urges Haste.

If that was impossible, he wanted the case to be put over until December.

Judge Roan interrupted with the remark that he was anxious to pass on the case as quickly as possible, and would be against any delay until December, and the same sentiments were expressed by Solicitor Dorsey. The Solicitor pointed out that he had given every moment of his time to preparing his answer to the lengthy plea filed by the defense, and that he would continue to do everything toward hastening the hearing.

Dorsey and Leonard Hix, of counsel for the defense, began Friday a review of the record of the case to try to find out what the State was trying to do. Mr. Hix was unable to continue the work Saturday, but arranged to resume the conference Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

Sixty pages of the 4th were gone over the first afternoon, minor alterations and additions being made at the suggestion of the Solicitor. Practically all of the remaining time before the hearing will be occupied in this work, and it is probable that it will be concluded satisfactorily by Wednesday.

Dr. T. T. Grayson. Dr. Grayson feels that the President's health has been impaired by his strenuous work during the past summer in Washington, and has advised the President of the same and that an attempt to continue would be extremely harmful to the President's health.

Sir Thomas has shown his confidence in American sportsmanship by displaying a completed model of the challenger to Captain Barron, of San Francisco, who is now in London in connection with the Panama Exposition.

Captain Barron said to-day that while he could not disclose the details of the model, our designers would have to "go home" to beat Nicholson's design.

"As a practical sailor and yachtsman I would say that in Lipton's model I've seen the most wonderful thing in yachts. It combines every beauty of line and speed."

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 18.—After a bitter struggle among the vestrymen of fashionable Trinity Church, during which Organist Walter E. Hall had been ordered by the Rev. E. S. Travers, the new rector, to play what he termed "ecclesiastical rag" music, it was decided that the organist should be allowed to play "ecclesiastical rag" during church services.

"I am a firm believer in congregational singing," said Organist Austin, "I believe a hymn should be played so that the congregation can enter into the spirit of it."

SENATOR SMITH CERTAIN MONEY BILL WILL PASS

Georgia Lawmaker, However, Refuses to Comment on Hawthorne Prison Charges.

RETURNS HOME FOR A REST

Declares Banking and Currency Act Will Take Precedence Over All Others.

Senator Hoke Smith, taking advantage of a temporary lull in the legislative work at Washington, is at his home, No. 187 West Peachtree street, for a week's rest. His interest in the measure which has been before Congress this session has kept him busy, and he has been awaiting the opportunity for a few days in which he might get away from the Capital.

Senator Smith refused to make any comment upon the session which has been stirred up by the snafus charged against him by W. J. Morison in respect to conditions in the Atlanta Federal Prison.

Reference to the currency measure, for which he has been very active, Senator Smith said:

"We are going to pass the currency bill before we pass the current-

SUFFRAGETTE BARRED FROM U. S.

Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, who has been ordered deported by the United States immigration officials. Pending her appeal, she is forced to remain at Ellis Island. Below is a picture of the room she occupies. It is plainly, almost barely, furnished. The photograph shows General Cipriano Castro, exiled former President of Venezuela, while he was confined at Ellis Island. Mrs. Pankhurst will occupy the same quarters.

Famous English Militant Chief Is Arrested on Her Arrival at New York, Given a Special Hearing and Adjudged Undesirable.

First Takes Her Detention Calmly, Then Becomes Angry, and Says Inquiry Was 'Star Chamber Act.' Suffragists of Nation Protest.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The United States barred Mrs. Pankhurst on the ground of "moral turpitude," which the dictionary thus defines: "Inherent baseness, or viciousness; shameful wickedness, depravity."

Mrs. Pankhurst was convicted only of conspiracy in connection with the crusade of women for the ballot in England.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, leader of English militant suffragettes, was taken into custody by immigration officials when she arrived here to-day on the liner La Provence.

She immediately was taken to Ellis Island, where she was given a hearing before a special board of inquiry. The board decided that Mrs. Pankhurst should be excluded from the United States. She announced that she would be taken from this decision. Until her case is finally decided by Commissioner of Immigration Gustavus Franklin Conway, she will be held at Ellis Island.

Mrs. Pankhurst appeared in person before the board to which she was assigned to Cipriano Castro, the "Storm Petrel of Venezuela," when he was detained here.

Mrs. Pankhurst showed no trace of the illness from which she suffered while in an English prison. Mild mannered, sweet faced and smiling, she appeared anything but an "apostle of violence" as she is called by newspaper men.

She wore a long seal coat over a dark blue suit, a dark blue hat mounted by a black quill and brown all gloves.

When the reporters Mrs. Pankhurst said:

"I was convicted under a very peculiar act of Parliament. It is the same act under which men were sent to prison when they were trying to get the franchise. My act was a political act."

"I am engaged with other women in a revolution that is very similar to your American Revolution. The conditions under which we women are living now is practically taxation without representation."

"You think, then, that your fight is against George V just as the right is against George III?" she was asked.

"Not King George V," declared Mrs. Pankhurst, militantly. "You mean King Arthur."

"You see," she continued, "we have a cabinet aristocracy in a somewhat democratic nation. One obstinate old gentleman keeps locked the doors to reform."

In explanation of the statement that she had run away from the other side, Mrs. Pankhurst declared that she had left her country after the greatest deliberation.

"No one arrested me," she said. "No one even intimated that I would be placed under arrest. I took the Continental train on my way to France. The newspapers never mentioned the matter, although the newsgatherers were there."

WHY SUFFRAGETTE LEADER IS BARRED

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The United States barred Mrs. Pankhurst on the ground of "moral turpitude," which the dictionary thus defines: "Inherent baseness, or viciousness; shameful wickedness, depravity."

Mrs. Pankhurst was convicted only of conspiracy in connection with the crusade of women for the ballot in England.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, leader of English militant suffragettes, was taken into custody by immigration officials when she arrived here to-day on the liner La Provence.

She immediately was taken to Ellis Island, where she was given a hearing before a special board of inquiry. The board decided that Mrs. Pankhurst should be excluded from the United States. She announced that she would be taken from this decision. Until her case is finally decided by Commissioner of Immigration Gustavus Franklin Conway, she will be held at Ellis Island.

Mrs. Pankhurst appeared in person before the board to which she was assigned to Cipriano Castro, the "Storm Petrel of Venezuela," when he was detained here.

Mrs. Pankhurst showed no trace of the illness from which she suffered while in an English prison. Mild mannered, sweet faced and smiling, she appeared anything but an "apostle of violence" as she is called by newspaper men.

She wore a long seal coat over a dark blue suit, a dark blue hat mounted by a black quill and brown all gloves.

When the reporters Mrs. Pankhurst said:

"I was convicted under a very peculiar act of Parliament. It is the same act under which men were sent to prison when they were trying to get the franchise. My act was a political act."

"I am engaged with other women in a revolution that is very similar to your American Revolution. The conditions under which we women are living now is practically taxation without representation."

"You think, then, that your fight is against George V just as the right is against George III?" she was asked.

"Not King George V," declared Mrs. Pankhurst, militantly. "You mean King Arthur."

"You see," she continued, "we have a cabinet aristocracy in a somewhat democratic nation. One obstinate old gentleman keeps locked the doors to reform."

In explanation of the statement that she had run away from the other side, Mrs. Pankhurst declared that she had left her country after the greatest deliberation.

U. S. WOMEN RISE IN ANGER AGAINST PANKHURST BAN Action Is a Disgrace to America, Declares Georgia Leader

Mrs. Mary L. McLendon, President of the Georgia Equal Suffrage Association, and the State's pioneer suffragist, last night emphatically condemned the action of the authorities in barring Mrs. Pankhurst. She said: "It is a downright shame. I would consider the deportation of Mrs. Pankhurst a disgrace to America. It is unbelievable that such a thing could happen in a country that poses as a civilized nation. If she had been a man she would have been allowed to enter the country and go about her business. But in the case of a woman, the sole desire seems to be to deprive her of all her rights, even the few that most men think she has. I feel personally the shame and disgrace brought upon this country by the action of the Government. It makes one almost ashamed to be an American—to be of a people whose proudest boast is their liberty, and yet whose officials seek to deprive a woman, intelligent and able, of that liberty. It only emphasizes the need of woman suffrage."

WILSON BOWDLE PLEAS TO FREE PANKHURST

Senators and Cabinet Members Also Flooded With Petitions, While Prisoner Gets Hundreds of Assurances of Support and Sympathy.

STRIKING UTTERANCES OF MRS. PANKHURST
I would not be a man for all the wealth in the world.
If encouraging the breaking of windows shows moral turpitude, then your American ancestors who threw tea overboard in Boston harbor were guilty of moral turpitude.
I came here with no advice to give. I came, as Farnell, Davitt and Redmond came, for political support.
Your women do not need military. I do not advise it here.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Over telephone wires that today connect the United States with the United Kingdom, Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, militant suffragette, ordered reported by the United States immigration authorities, who are occupying the same room at Ellis Island which held Cipriano Castro, deposed President of Venezuela.

MRS. EMMELINE PANKHURST, famous English militant suffragette, ordered reported by the United States immigration authorities, who are occupying the same room at Ellis Island which held Cipriano Castro, deposed President of Venezuela.

Three days ago, Mrs. Pankhurst, militant suffragette, ordered reported by the United States immigration authorities, who are occupying the same room at Ellis Island which held Cipriano Castro, deposed President of Venezuela.

It is to be desired that I am rather shocked. If I can only get my turpitude—a charge of which the House of Commons declared me and my associates not guilty—where can you Americans glorify the leaders of the Boston tea party—who were guilty of the same crime as I am? I am not here to give advice. I am here to enter and proselytize in the name of the British cause.

"It is because they are men! If I am in a meeting here in this land of freedom the same element of unfairness that aroused the suffragettes in my country to militancy."

This is Mrs. Pankhurst's third visit to the United States. Since her last trip she has changed little. Her face has become grayer and her gray eyes have grown a bit less truthful. Her hair is now a mass of white curls. She is a little shorter and a good looking, thin, angular-shaped body with ornamental black and white dress.

Every feature beneath her black and gray hair denotes determination, courage, mental alertness and executive ability. She is uncompromising in her remarks and rarely qualified statements. In her testimony Mrs. Pankhurst said: "I have been here on previous occasions and I have never shared the hospitality shown me and I do not intend to share it this time."

Suffragists of Atlanta Denounce Deportation

None Indorse Militancy, But Many Regard Action as Direct Affront to "The Cause" in America.

Atlanta suffragists leaders were not last Sunday night in denouncing the action of the United States immigration authorities in ordering the deportation of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the noted English militant suffragist, on the grounds that she is an undesirable alien and comes under the "moral turpitude" clause of the immigration regulations.

They characterized the action of the government as a contradiction of its spirit and ideals of the American Constitution, and many of them regard the refusal to allow Mrs. Pankhurst to come to the United States as a direct affront to the suffragettes of this country.

None of them would indorse the campaign of militancy which has made Mrs. Pankhurst famous. The British government more than any other one person in the world has declared that in all probability militancy is the only course open to the English women.

The action of the Government authorities, they declared, Mrs. Pankhurst, a woman of undoubted intelligence and ability, that she is a woman of the highest character, a woman of the highest character, a woman of the highest character, a woman of the highest character.

It is to be desired that I am rather shocked. If I can only get my turpitude—a charge of which the House of Commons declared me and my associates not guilty—where can you Americans glorify the leaders of the Boston tea party—who were guilty of the same crime as I am?

TRI-CORNERED SENATE RACE IN FLORIDA BEGINS

Stockton, Fletcher and Gilchrist Active—Restricting Delays Congressional Contests.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Oct. 18.—John C. Stockton is taking a quiet trip through the State surveying the condition of his forces. Senator Duncan Fletcher is expected to arrive tomorrow and immediately start a battle for re-election, and former Governor Albert W. John Stockton without doubt will take the run of his life this time. Any time he has gone down in defeat for this same position. Senator Fletcher comes to the fray reinforced by a record of much accomplished work in behalf of the rural citizen, and will make a hard fight. Governor Gilchrist has many a tale to tell of his long career in the "Sunshine" State, and his long experience in the Florida Senate. The contest of when the redoubtable ex-farmer is holding these things in mind, he is going to run against him in which district.

It is predicted that last Sunday's American, Governor Park Trammell, will announce Monday that he would not run in a special session of the Legislature to alter this law, and would let the candidates run in next June's primary under the present law. Attorney General T. F. West has made the same ruling, unofficially.

GEORGIA'S PROSPERITY IS ALSO YOUR PROSPERITY

The Enormous Cotton Crop Gives Every Man, Woman and Child in the State the Chance to Become Independent if They Will Start Now and Save a Little of Their Share.

WHAT GEORGIA'S COTTON CROP IS WORTH TO EVERY MAN, WOMAN AND CHILD IN THE STATE

Georgia's crop, minimum estimate	2,500,000 bales
Price	14 cents
Value of the cotton itself	$175,000,000
Seed produced	1,250,000 tons
Estimated crush (3/4 total)	937,000 tons
Price	$22
Value of the seed	$20,625,000
Total value of cotton and seed	$195,625,000
Population of Georgia	2,600,000
Value of the cotton crop per capita	$75.23

GEORGIA just now is engaged in gathering and selling a crop which will have a minimum total value of $195,625,000. It is all the gold which the cotton crop of Georgia brings were not in one great heap, and every man, woman and child in Georgia, white and negro, were to form in line and file by it while some man gave each an equal share, each of the 2,600,000 persons would get $75.23.

When the line broke, and the people assembled in family circles, each family of five, which is the average family, would have $376.15.

This may seem a fantastic notion.

It is not. It is just what happens. Every soul in Georgia, from the tiniest pickaninny in arms to Governor Slaton himself, eventually get a share of the money cotton brings to Georgia, perhaps half of them directly and the other half indirectly.

Like all rivers, this stream of gold grows as it rolls along. Every time the cotton passes through a Georgia cotton mill, or a mattress factory, it increases in value. Every time the seed goes through a Georgia oil mill it increases in value.

The wealth which the cotton crop brings to Georgia this year must amount to almost $100 per capita when all is said.

Now this is where we are heading.

Everyone knows the fable of the grasshopper and the ant. It has been told to children since the time of Solomon, who admonished the imprudent, "Go to the ant, thou sluggard; consider its ways and be wise."

The only excuse for quoting it now is that it fits Georgia's so well.

DO NOT BE A GRASSHOPPER. DO NOT SPEND YOUR $75.23 WHICH IS WHAT YOU WILL GET FROM THE COTTON CROP IN ONE WAY OR ANOTHER.

SAVE A LITTLE, AT LEAST—MUCH IF YOU CAN. There may not be such another crop for years to come. We hope there will be, but history is against the expectation. And if there is another such crop in 1914 and 1915, the chances are strongly against Georgia being as lucky as it was this year. Next time, the Central and Western States will have big crops, too, and the price will be correspondingly lower than this year.

SAVE NOW FOR POSSIBLE DULL TIMES TO COME.

Stagnant family in Georgia put $1 in the savings bank this year. That would mean spending the $75 per capita for necessities, say, and the $63 for trifles, and saving simply the $12 apiece.

The very first year, Georgia would be $50,000 over half a million dollars richer than the happy day when no one shall for the poor house.

The savings banks of Georgia nearly all pay 4 per cent now, compounded semi-annually. At the end of one year, this meager 20 cents per capita would have increased a total of $21.008, the accrued interest, and the families of Georgia would have $24.108.

After years, supposing that Georgia saved no more, but simply left 20 cents per capita undisturbed, the savings of the State would amount to $712,678.41.

THIS IS JUST TO SHOW HOW PENNIES GROW INTO DOLLARS.

EVERY GEORGIAN SHOULD HAVE A SAVINGS BANK ACCOUNT.

This is the time to start it. Money never will be more plentiful in Georgia than it is this year. In all probability, at least not for some time.

Does not mean that there will not one day be a more valuable cotton crop grown in the State, or that there will not be more face money coming wealth to Georgia. But when the larger crop and the greater factories come there will be more of us to live on.

If Georgians can not save now, probably they never can.

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS IS THRIFT.

If the Georgia farmer had not spent his return from the crop of 1911—that wonderful crop of which we all are so proud—he would not have felt the pinch last year.

But how does this apply to Atlantians?

Wages here on the cotton crop. There is no disguising the fact, wages here, not one thing to.

So money is plentiful in Atlanta this fall, and will be more plentiful right along throughout the present season.

There are plenty of "jobs." Wages are good.

There probably is not a laboring man who can not save 25 cents a week.

Twenty-five cents a week, at 4 per cent compounded semi-annually, amounts in ten years to $15.31 and in twenty years to $39.97.

That's not an imposing sum, but a great deal to build up from quarters. Long before the twenty years, it will make the first payment on a home, the first fruit of independence, which stops forever the heaviest drain on the wage-earner's income.

And the man who saves 25 cents a week for five years, or even one, will acquire habits of thrift which will enable him to increase that amount.

Think it over.

There is no argument against saving—absolutely none. Only one thing prevents everyone saving, and that is lack of will power.

No one can raise a whisper of distrust against Georgia's banks. They are run by men of probity, under wise laws.

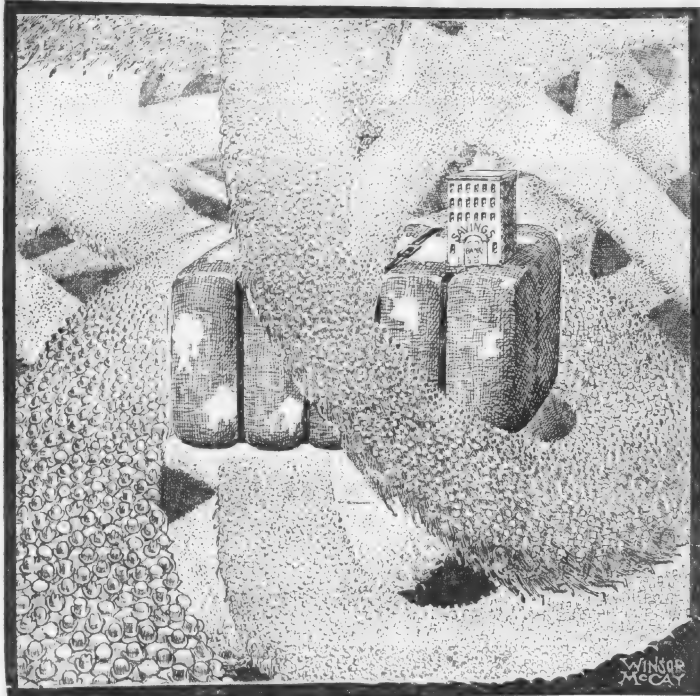

They are fostered by Uncle Sam and the State of Georgia, he, the citizen, he helps you, and is worthy of his help.

The Georgia banks' welfare depends absolutely upon the State as a whole. What is good for Georgia is good for them.

And nothing could be better for Georgia than to have a hundred per cent.

THIS IS THE TIME TO BEGIN. MAKE YOUR PENNIES GROW INTO DOLLARS.

The party will arrive in Crawfordville shortly after 11 o'clock and will meet at the train by the Crawfordville Daughters of the Confederacy under whose auspices the dedication ceremony will take place. # WE SOUGHT TO GET THE CITY MARKET

Californians Coming by Pullman Train Loads to Claim Promised Good Time.

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

Former Adair, illustrious potter of Yarnall Temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, has received notice of a California invasion next May, when the National Imperial Council meets in Atlanta, that has filled his soul with gladness and forebodes big things.

When Adair and his nobles stormed Dallas last May, seeking to bring the Imperial Council to Atlanta, they promised all sorts of things for the big show next year.

They talked Atlanta so wisely and so well that it now looks as if every body who is anybody in the Shrine together with his sisters and his sons and his daughters, is coming to the Gate City of the South next year, here to make merry after about twenty years of California State away.

California, farthest State west, is the first to frame up for next year's show in Atlanta.

On May 1, 1914, just about the time California Shrine officials are going to be transferred to the city, the Shrine will require several special trains to get those California folks into the Sunny South, but there is no doubt that the Shrine will be no less than a triumph when it comes to the Shrine.

FIGHT WAGED FOR YEARS

Exchange Finally Gives in Rather Than Have Congress Force Drastic Law on It.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—There is a feeling that the New York Cotton Exchange will make some concessions to the government in the near future.

A general consensus has been reached in the exchange that it is time to study the question of reform.

This committee will report in a special meeting of the board of directors in early 1934.

The action of course, as a result of the bill, will be to force the exchange to make some concessions.

GARDEN SAGE DARKENS GRAY HAIR SO NATURALLY NOBODY CAN TELL

Restores Its Luster, Prevents Scalp Itching, Dandruff and Falling Hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brushing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. While it is a money, tedious task it well repays those whose hair is turning gray, faded and streaked. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks dry, wiry and scraggly just an application of two of Sage and Sulphur restores its appearance a hundred fold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic; you can get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Truth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," ready to be brushed back the natural color and luster of your hair and the best thing known to remove dandruff, scalp itching and falling hair.

Everybody chooses "Truth's" Sage and Sulphur because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time which requires but a few moments. Do this at night and by morning the gray hair has disappeared and after a few applications it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, true and abundant. It certainly gives you a look years younger and is as attractive, says a well-known downtown druggist—Ad.

No wonder the National Shoe Wholesalers' Association Monthly Bulletin says that the growth of the shoe business of Lynchburg is "unparalleled in the history of the shoe industry."

There is little wonder that the 200 shoe salesmen who have just left LYNCHBURG with 4,000 sample trunks containing 250,000 samples are kept busy taking orders for LYNCHBURG Shoes.

It would take a train of cars three miles long to carry the shipment of shoes that went out of LYNCHBURG last month alone.

LYNCHBURG Shoes appeal alike to Southern pride and the Southern purse. Not only will the purchase of a LYNCHBURG Shoe help home industry and keep Southern money circulating in the South to the benefit of the South, but you are helping yourself to the best shoe value that that amount of money will buy for you.

Verdi's masterful opera of "Il Trovatore" was written for the young man and during the performance of the opera, Verdi was so moved by the original score that he wrote the opera in the night. The result was that an imperial and theatrical west front that the name of Verdi was not to appear in the public prints nor on any placards or billboards, and not even to be pronounced in any of the public gatherings throughout Italy. The youthful political composer was charged, but not to be deterred, he wrote the score and caused his name to be placed in all the most conspicuous places within the city of Rome in very large flaming letters.

Nothing appeared but the name Verdi. He was arrested and taken before a king's magistrate, was severely reprimanded and about to be thrown into the donjon. His only defense was that he was a composer and not a politician. The king's magistrate was so impressed by the composer's story that he released him. The composer then wrote the opera and it was performed in the city of Rome. The king's magistrate was so impressed by the composer's story that he released him. ## An Atlanta Firm Employing Atlanta Workmen

Manufactures the Original and Only Genuine MONCRIEF FURNACE

For sixteen years the original MONCRIEF FURNACE has been manufactured in the city of Atlanta, sold in the city of Atlanta, as elsewhere, and for an equal number of years every ORIGINAL MONCRIEF has been giving satisfactory service.

For sixteen years Atlanta workmen have been making the original MONCRIEF FURNACES, and for just that long have been spending their hard-earned dollars regularly every week—spending them in the city of Atlanta. The people of Atlanta have shown their appreciation of the strictly high-grade furnace which we manufacture, and of the part we have played and are playing in the building of this great city. They have shown their appreciation in a substantial way—during the sixteen years that we have been in business here Atlantans have bought

One Thousand Nine Hundred and Sixty Original Moncrief Furnaces

AND THEY HAVE BOUGHT THEM FROM US. We have no monopoly of the furnace business in Atlanta; we welcome honest competition, realizing that THAT KIND of competition helps to stimulate business generally. When another furnace manufacturer comes into Atlanta, though, and deliberately tries to monopolize our good name and reputation, appropriate to its own uses and profit by the constructive work we have done throughout all these sixteen years, we have a right to expose that manufacturer's methods, and we propose to do it. Mr. S. P. Moncrief is the ORIGINATOR, the head of the company that MANUFACTURES, and the sole selling agent in Atlanta of the ORIGINAL and GENUINE MONCRIEF FURNACE. Our office is located at 139 South Pryor, and when you want the long tried, ORIGINAL MONCRIEF FURNACE, either come to see us or telephone US about the matter and your order or request for information will receive our prompt attention. We have contracts on hand from Mississippi to North Carolina.

Several features which are the great essentials of the Moncrief Furnace are as follows: The Duplex Grate, which reduces the labor of cleaning the fire pot, rendering unnecessary the use of the poker or slitting bar; the Fire Pot, which is constructed of heavy weight and nearly straight, making it impossible for a shoe or coal to lodge on the side; the Feed Section, sufficiently large enough for free admission of a scoop shovel; the Casting Rings, made of heavy wrought iron, and the Radiator, consisting of a large combustion chamber, insuring all available heat.

EVERYTHING IS READY FOR THE Grand Opening

OF THE

GEORGIA STATE FAIR

Tuesday, October 21

The "MIDWAY" at the State Fair this year will be the strongest lot of amusements that could possibly be brought together. There will be seen Captain Sorcho's Great Deep Sea Divers, a show that never goes only to large events. This show is a power of amusement within itself.

Then there is the "Trip to Mars," Buckskin Ben's Wild West Show, Mazeppa, Pekin, Dreamland Circus Side Show, Motor-drome, Oriental Show, Ostrich Farm, Five in One, Dig-Bro Electus, Dixie Girls, Vaudeville Show, Diving Girls and many more. The entrance to the Midway is a thing of beauty and represents a royal arch stretching from two immense columns, leaving the grand entrance beneath the arch. The top is enlivened with an electrical fountain with the words "MIDWAY, 1913," in electric letters. This entrance was designed at great expense by Putzel, the Live Wire Man of Macon.

You can have a barrel of fun on the Midway. Go there often and stay late and you will have the time of your life.

Remember that the good old-time races of other days are coming back. We will have the real thing, covered by the rules of the National Racing Association. The very best horses of this country will compete for the big cash purses. Over 500 horses will take part in the big trotting and pacing races. Remember that the races start Saturday, October 25.

Arrangements have been made with one of the largest fireworks companies in the United States for the grandest display of fireworks each night at the big Hippodrome. Set pieces and ornamental sprays, intermingled with sky-dropping bombs that transmute a million varicolored stars, will be seen each night.

The buildings are full to overflowing with the best exhibits that have ever been upon the grounds. Especially is this true of the Agricultural Building. More counties are making exhibits than ever before, showing that they are beginning to learn that advertising pays. The Manufacturing Building will also have its big share of exhibits, and many handsome souvenirs will be given away in this building. The Woman's Building is also full of the very choicest of woman's handicraft, and here one may see elegant cakes and other goodies, as well as the very daintiest hand-embroidery and other needlework.

IN COAT HE WORE ALL DAY

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 18.—After driving all day with a coat he found in the street on the wagon seat beside him, a teamster saw the owner of the coat draw $1,485 from its pockets. The teamster, from papers in the pockets, learned the coat belonged to Henry Sorgia, proprietor of a saloon, and returned it to its owner. "I sure did not know all that money was in there when I was driving around with it," said the teamster. A $5 note rewarded him.

AKRON DECIDES TO OPERATE ITS OWN CAR LINES

Ohio City to Issue $225,000
Bonds and Break Grip of Monopoly.

(CLEVELAND, Oct. 18.)—A recommendation by the Akron Council committee to build a $2,000,000 bond issue to build a street railway system was unanimously adopted by the council. Akron thus is in line to be the first Ohio city to own its own street railway system. Favorable sentiment is widespread among citizens.

The action marks the climax of two years of fruitless negotiations with the Cleveland, Akron and Cuyahoga railroads for extension to the city. Six miles of extension to the present twenty-five miles of city tracks would have enabled citizens daily to avoid a walk of five miles to the nearest car. The company would not extend its lines. There have been no new railroads in the city for years.

The company demanded that for every mile of extension the city should pay a year to the company's franchise. The city refused the proposition, and the city council, after a long session, but offered no guarantee

Freddie Welsh Has Great Record Has Only Been Defeated Twice

A SPORTING writer recently stated that Freddie Welsh "does not figure high up in the list of lightweights." To be such a writer is to be a writer. The writer holds no brief for Freddie Welsh, but it is his business to write about him and write as the facts present themselves.

Welsh's record is a record. His record can be offered in evidence and the facts can then draw their own conclusions.

GOOD STUFF CORN WHISKEY

EXPRESS PAID

Send $3 for four honest quarts of Good Stuff, express paid. Use what you want. If you don't like it, it's the best corn whiskey you ever tasted, no matter what the price, send back the bottle, express collect, and we will refund your $3.

It's the kind of old corn liquor you've been waiting for—made the old Georgia way by famous Georgia distillers, in whose family the secret of distilling has been handed down from father to son these 100 years—made just across the river from Georgia, at Girard, Ala., in the only old-fashioned corn whiskey distillery in the world.

It's made just the way you want it, and it's so good it just warms up your very heart and makes you feel good all over.

Tourist on Long Trip Raps Georgia Roads; Finds Incompetence in Handling of Labor

Gabriel S. Jacobs, of Chicago, at the wheel of his Buick, Mrs. Jacobs at his side, and Master Jacob, a promising young automobilist, in the rear seat, after arrival in Atlanta on a round trip from Chicago. The trip was made on 40 gallons of gasoline, which is 25 miles to the gallon. North Georgia mountains were rough, as the story will tell.

Gabriel S. Jacobs Encounters Highways That Have Been Grossly Neglected—Travels With Wife and Child From Chicago on Forty Gallons of Gasoline.

"That here in Georgia I found some road conditions that were startling," Gabriel Jacobs, who has just completed a tour from Chicago to Atlanta, "founders were working on the roads and working very hard, but seemingly without result. They have no directing board or guide lines. The mountains of North Georgia are well and truly a maze of roads that will find their way to the state of complete confusion. The roads have been built by ground level, and builders and sharp rocks obstruct the way. The trouble is that the men in charge of road construction are ignorant."

Better Service Makes the Cartercar a Better Value!

When you pay out your money you are not merely buying a motor car, you are buying motor service. And it is very obvious that the car that will give the best service is the best value. This is why the Cartercar sells its owners so well. It gives perfect service over all roads and for all drivers.

And the Cartercar gives better service than the ordinary car simply because it is made different from where the gear car is inefficient. The gearless transmission makes the Cartercar reliable under all possible conditions. There is nothing to break, quite a contrast to the numerous complicated parts of the ordinary car.

A Cartercar will climb hills and go through mud and sand in a surprising manner. The tremendous leverage at low speed makes it almost impossible to stall the motor.

Modern in every way, equipped with all conveniences, and with this extra efficiency and reliability, surely you must consider the Cartercar if you would have your money wisely.

We have a most excellent provision for dealers. Let us figure with you for the coming season.

WHAT IS "PUBLIC OPINION"?

EDWARD A. ALEXANDER, asks: "What is public opinion?" and writes a good letter that you will find in this article.

Public Opinion is the power that controls the world, in the long run. It is not expressed by any individual, any newspaper or any mob. But IT IS FELT, and, while it is often insulted and defied, it rules in the long run.

From time to time public opinion takes definite, crystallized form and shape in laws, religion, moral doctrines, proverbs, fables, et cetera.

The Ten Commandments are an expression of public opinion. "Thou shalt not steal" is public opinion crystallized.

Public opinion does not mean selfishness or wisdom, always. It means usually that which is convenient at the time and in the place.

Public opinion in China for a long while said that women must have their feet squeezed. Public opinion in the Sandwich Islands taught that boats of all kinds were "taboo" for women. It was a worse crime for a woman to get into a boat than to kill her own child. That was convenient, as it kept women from running away from one island to another, which would have been sad for their lords and masters.

Public opinion stopped wholesale infanticide and universal cannibalism—which ruled at one time.

Public opinion abolishes capital punishment in one civilized neighborhood and in another it punishes the horse thief with hanging—the safety of horses being more important than respect for justice.

Public opinion is the expression of the wisdom of the people as a whole—and that is the greatest wisdom.

But the wisdom that finds expression in public opinion is modified by conditions, by the selfish interest of the mass, and too often by the passions of the mob.

It must be remembered that a mob of human beings does not express the public opinion of intellect, but the hatred of passion.

What Is "Public Opinion"? It Is Often Mistaken, Sometimes Cruel, Frequently Ignorant---but It Is the Only Final Protection and the Greatest Power of the People

The mob is in reality a hunting pack; it is a going back of human beings to the savage state of hatred and destruction.

This fact has been admirably emphasized by the late Professor Shaler, of Harvard.

Public opinion, as we have said, finds formal, definite, crystallized expression in certain laws; for instance, the laws that protect property and sanctify marriage, thus protecting women and children; the laws that prevent the use of poison in warfare and of torture in judicial investigation.

All law, all rules to which human beings submit, are simply public opinion crystallized into definite expression.

Nothing is harder to break when outgrown than public opinion that has taken the form of law and tradition.

Only public opinion itself is strong enough to destroy and break down the barriers that public opinion has created.

No man can be said to represent or to be the spokesman of public opinion.

But a man may, TEMPORARILY, become PUBLIC OPINION ITSELF, when the public in an emergency decrees that HIS opinion is wisdom.

Abraham Lincoln was public opinion in this country for awhile, luckily for the country.

Public opinion can give to a man a power that nothing can resist.

Yet, no man's power is great enough to control or defy public opinion when that opinion changes.

It was public opinion, not love of the republic, that kept Caesar from accepting the crown.

It was public opinion, not the will or the conscience or any one man, that limited our Presidential office to two terms.

George Washington was our wisest man, undoubtedly, in his day, and certainly the man to whom this country owes most.

Yet without the pressure of public opinion Washington's fame might have been spoiled, the growth of the country checked and changed. For without the expression of public opinion Washington might well have considered it his duty to the country to remain in power indefinitely.

The strongest individual that ever lived, perhaps, was Cromwell. He never lost a battle, mental or physical. But it was not the power stored away in his round head that gave him his power. It was public opinion, that had had enough of the reign of Charles and the debauchery, ignorance and misery that went with it.

Newspapers represent public opinion only in as much AS THEY EXPRESS PUBLIC OPINION HONESTLY AND ACCURATELY. A newspaper has the power of SUGGESTION. It has many readers, and can put the same thought into many minds at the same time. And that is a great power.

But a newspaper has many readers only because it expresses the feeling and THE OPINION of many citizens.

A newspaper's power is not a menace, even when it falls into vicious or misguided hands. For the most powerful newspaper is as perishable as a mushroom. A man can change his paper as quickly as he can change his mind.

A newspaper is not really a directing force as much as it is a mirror, reflecting the interest, purposes and opinion of the bigger or smaller part of the community.

True, as the friend who writes us says, public opinion has "burned people at the stake for witchcraft, thrown the greatest of men into dungeons, on the one hand, and on the other it has struck the most powerful blows for liberty, equality and justice."

Public opinion is simply the expression of the thought of collective man AT THE TIME.

When men believe in witches, public opinion forms the mob and burns the miserable victim. When men believe that the earth is square, that a few stars were put in the sky as an after thought, and that the sun goes around the earth, public opinion endorses the power which forces Galileo on his knees to recant his wonderful TRUTH.

Public opinion of course can be no wiser than the wisdom of the day, no more just than the justice of the day, no more kind than the kindness of the day. At one stage public opinion authorizes the murder of slaves as an amusement, or in testing poisons.

A little later, in the Middle Ages, it authorizes the branding with red-hot irons of miserable laborers, starving, that stray from their hamlet in search of work.

But public opinion is THE CONSCIENCE OF THE HUMAN RACE and the INTELLIGENCE of the race.

As the race progresses public opinion becomes higher, fairer, more consistent. It is difficult for us to realize it now, but the day is coming when public opinion, man's collective conscience, will do away with courts, policemen, jails, detectives and lawsuits. That will be THE BEGINNING of a real civilization.

We thank Mr. Alexander for his very interesting letter, and print it in full here:

To the Editor:
Dear Sir—Write an editorial on "Public Opinion." Does the term "public opinion" mean the real independent opinions of a majority, or merely a majority of the opinions expressed by votes or other outward manifestations of expression?
Among the number of those who vote for an idea, conceived by a creative, intelligent mind, many do not understand its meaning or the practical effect of its operation.

Some of these ignorant persons vote for it, because some friend in whom they have confidence tells them to do so; others, because they believe they will reap patronage or other personal benefit from or through it; others, because some newspaper appeals either to their intelligence or prejudices.

The result of this voting may be the adoption of a law, but not the independent opinion of a majority of the voters. In other words, a majority of votes may not coincide with a majority of opinions.

Even if every man would vote according to his own independent judgment; even if no man would be influenced by self-interest, so that every vote were the free and voluntary expression of every voter's sincere, independent, unhampered opinion—still it would not follow that a majority was right, at any given time, because their judgment may have been based upon inaccurate statements or erroneous reasoning.

Then, again, communities change from time to time, and what might be regarded as right in one community would be regarded as wrong in another.

Furthermore, the same communities themselves undergo changes of opinion. What then is "public opinion"? Is it the opinion which the newspapers and the magazines say the public entertains of this man or that, of this thing or that? No, a majority of the public may and frequently do disagree with the opinions expressed in the newspapers, or in most of them.

Is "public opinion" shifting and evanescent, or real and substantial?

That it is one of the most powerful things in the world no one will deny. It has burned people at the stake for witchcraft, thrown the greatest of men into dungeons, on the one hand, and on the other it has struck the most powerful blows for liberty, equality and justice. It is and always has been more powerful than kings, or other rulers, than armies, or than other physical or mechanical force.

Without pursuing the subject further, it must be admitted that the meaning of "public opinion" is somewhat indefinite and is based upon complicated conditions. Will you please throw some light on its real meaning and give your readers the benefit of your views on the subject? Yours very truly,

EDWARD A. ALEXANDER

Applauds among the upper classes is considered vulgar, but a deeper scrutiny of the national attributes will show that they abstain from the healthful bath through a spirit of economy, so no Englishman would break a pair of shifting gloves at a second contest between David and Goliath.

To prove this let me inform you that each native Englishman carries a change purse:

Can you picture anyone buying a grand piano or paying over a dime for terrapin? Maryland out of a change purse? Granting a man may have been born with a drop of liberality in his arseless system, he can't stand the narrowing effects of a change purse. If Riley Greenman, the greatest slinger America ever knew, had a change purse, he would never get a speck of light. In later years he wouldn't have a bit of light, the Flat Building was over a foot high. Show me a man with a change purse, and I'll show you a man that can't be amused.

South America

Our Next Neighbor to the South—Who Live There and Why—Full Dope on the Sister Continent.

NOW that Colonel Roosevelt is blitting up South American game trails, it is time the readers of The Smile were posted on the characteristics of the vast continent to the south of us. Brazil is one of the largest countries in the world. It is principally inhabited by puts (the kind you eat), and should be a better place than Piedmont Park for squirrels.

South America used to be joined to North America by Central America, but Colonel Goatskin cut the highway in two. Strange to say, even without this bond South America has not drifted away to any extent. On the West Coast is Peru, the home of Peruvian how-how. It is also inhabited by Peruvian balloons, which is very exciting if applied to a cut on some other person. The northern part of South America is drained by the Amazon, free of charge. How different from real estate developments! (To be Continued Next Sunday.)

Take It from Solomon

By J. J. LEIBSON.

NOTE: Marriage is conducive to wisdom, for trouble is a great educator. That is how King Solomon grew wise. Before long, wisdom was all he had, so he was obliged to write proverbs in order to defray household expenses. (There were no Chautauques in his day.) These, as we all know, attained a wide popularity. But there were other writings that he never gave to the world. The following manuscript, recently discovered and presented here for the first time, deals with a subject on which King Solomon was unquestionably the greatest authority that ever lived. Written in the valley of the shadow of matrimony, he dared not publish it, for his wives would have put a little more of the solemn in Solomon.

1. Hear, O, my son, incline thine ear unto Wisdom.
2. The feet of Youth are wayward and seek to stray from the narrow path of Judgment into the Lanes of Love.
3. Thou goss as in a dream, and when thou wakest thou art deep in the Mires of Matrimony.
4. Yes, verily, thou feelest a lightness about thy heart and thou callest it Love. But the lighter is only in thy head.
5. My son, thou played a game, "Watch Dogger" turketh at thy right hand. Thou blinkest to hold a queen; see that it be not a knave and fill thy days with the very deuce.
6. If thou choicest such and such a woman, and sayest with fine scorn for Wisdom, O, this one is DIFFERENT, then say I unto thee, thou art hapless and mayest as well join the Tribes of Suckers and be a Gink forever.
7. He that investeth in the Bonds of Matrimony buyeth above par and hath neither security nor profit.
8. The coveted kiss of a strange woman is like fruit out of season; but the kiss of a wife is as a daily dish of prunes.
9. A man that knothole before a woman the least of his sorrows shall be a pain in the knees and baggy trousers.
10. Thou rantest about love. Love is found only in the dictionary. Even there, behind, "liberty" and "life" come before and "husky" after.
11. Beware the woman with a blue eye; beware the woman with a brown eye; beware the woman with a gray eye; beware, O, my son, the woman with any but a glass eye, for only such cannot see thee and mark thee for her own.
12. It taketh the combined wisdom of a sage and a weather prophet to say what a woman will do next; even then she will do different.
13. Beware the false philosopher who hold that there is safety in numbers; 'tis but a saying of Satan, for many wives make woe.
14. These things shalt thou hold in abomination: a coy look and a painted lip, a pencilled brow and a coil of false hair, for the make-up of a woman lieth the unmaking of many a man.

Worst Jokes of the Week

Copyright, 1913, by the Hearst Company. Great Britain Rights Reserved. Of course some jokes are worse than others. These, for instance, if you don't like 'em, don't blame us—we're just looking for sympathy.

- "WERE THERE REALLY BENT IN TO YOU?"
"SILVERSTEIN! Is he a Hebrew?"
"I believe he is; comes from out West, Oshkosh, I think."
"Aha! It's not only kosher; he's an Osh-kosher!"
- CERTAINLY, YOU DON'T SUPPOSE WE WROTE 'EM, DO YOU?
"MINNIE badder runs a clothing store out West. He calls it the 'TUBS'."
"Why does he call it the 'TUBS'?"
"Because it is 6, Times Square."
- HERE'S A BEAR.
"HAVE you got your new shoes broken in yet?"
"Pretty fair. Wore them three hours at a stretch at the mortis show last night, though they hurt some."
"I see. You can wear them a while—on a pinch."
- YOU'LL HAVE TO STUDY THIS ONE.
"WHAT do you do for a living?"
"I read the boards before the footlights—an actor. And you?"
"I read the footboards behind the headlight. An engineer."
"Times?"
"Yep."
Then they both had a light.
- HERE'S SUBTLE HUMOR FOR YOU.
"WHAT makes the pictures move so fast? You can just hear that reel hum."
"It's near their closing time, and I suppose the operator wants to go home."
- SOME ARE ORIGINAL.
"Aa, Uncle cut the stem of a pumpkin leaf and made a whistle out of the tube."
"Oh, yes, yes. When a boy I used to make whistles out of elder twigs that way."
"Well, if I made a whistle out of a string bean, would that be a wind instrument or a string instrument?"
- OTHERS ARE CRIMINAL.
"SUPPOSE a young man, unable to rise a mustache should try this scheme: Could he act have part of a rabbit's left hind leg? That grafted on his upper jaw, and so get a nice brown 'mache'?"
"It might be done, but even after the young man, of course, would have a hare lip."

The Thin End of the Foundation is Any Bore

How a DEAF Mute "HEARD" Her First MUSIC

Helen Keller, celebrated the world over for her "strange" and "miraculous" gift of being deaf, blind and almost dumb since a fever robbed her of these faculties at the age of eighteen months, has at last been enabled to "hear" the tone of a violin and to appreciate the wonder of a musical harmony.

Professor Frank Kohler, of the Oberlin Conservatory of Music, and formerly the concert master of Pittsburgh Orchestra under Emil Paur, after a series of experiments, was able to penetrate the dead wall of her useless eardrums and arouse some dormant auditory power that responded to the powerful low D he played on the C string.

Miss Keller's utter amazement at the new sensation of "hearing" this thing which was called music was intense. Her whole body quivered with excitement, and when some particular note seemed to make her feel the music, she shook with a spasm of emotion as if she was a very part of the violin.

Mrs. Mary, Helen's teacher, declares that it is a "miracle" since her pupil has never had any knowledge of musical tones, and that the feat of "singing the scale" before the International Otological Congress at Harvard Medical School in Boston last Summer, which attracted such world-wide attention to Miss Keller, was a purely mechanical result obtained by muscular control of the throat and vocal cords.

Professor Kohler used a Stradivarius made in 1722, "the golden age," when Anton Stradivarius turned out his most perfect work. Improving through three octaves, he finally struck a low D on the G string, which seemed to first arouse Miss Keller's new faculty of "hearing."

In order to get the most direct communication between his instrument and Miss Keller's sensitive brain, he had her clench her teeth tightly on the scroll of the violin. This enabled the vibrations to travel instantly up the lower auxiliary bones to the lower lobes of the brain, where they set up a responsive vibration and established first physical feeling and later some dormant auditory power.

Miss Keller later, of her own accord, transferred the violin's scroll from her mouth to the cheek bone just above and in front of her right ear. There she pressed it so insistently that her flesh was discolored after the tests were finished. The vibrations of the violin, according to Professor Kohler, are so penetrating and insistent that they will pierce through almost any solid substance, and if it is not too thick, will set it vibrating in response. He quotes the manager of several music halls where the violin tones have gained sufficient vibrating intensity that the steel girders, at the top have been shaken from their rigid setting.

Professor Kohler first experimented on a deaf and deaf-mute at Oberlin College, whom he was able to teach to differentiate between violin tones of two intervals. He declares that "while the ear drums is the medium by which sound impressions are conveyed to the human brain, it is not so in all creatures. Many small insects and beetles seem to be more responsive limited. And there are many—some either too low or too high for the human ear to catch. Yet these other sounds have an equally important place in the world of tone. You have seen the experiment where a flame within a glass chimney can be almost extinguished by the rapid vibrations of a shrill violin note. It is the same way with beetles and small insects which are influenced by sound and the physical feeling of vibrations.

Now, in Miss Keller's case, there is a more sensible fever which robbing her of hearing did not take from her all auditory power.

Professor Kohler went on to state that he has seen many instances where deaf people who were robbed of hearing by some sickness or accident, still retained a large amount of auditory power, and that which communication is properly established they are able to distinguish musical tones and catch a glimpse of real harmony.

The effect on her personality of this experience was unique. When the vibration gave her the first distinct shock of "hearing" she shook with a convulsive spasm as if she herself were a part of the violin to which she was clinging. And at each repetition of that, she responded just as she did at the first. Kohler then improvised simple phrases, running three octaves, from high G to low G.

When playing in the major keys with open strings he frequently struck notes which later she grew to recognize more and more easily. With the strings covered and playing flat he got only a comparatively small response from her.

When he struck the high register phrases on his E string and repeated them over and over, she declared, with increasing frequency, "Oh, I can feel it. Now I hear it. It is the music you tell about so much." Miss Keller was so greatly moved when at the final tests—Professor Kohler repeated the opening phrases from Saint-Saëns' "Le Cygne"—that tears started from her eyes, and she begged him not to stop playing. And when the music ended she cried out, "Oh, it was like the voices of singing angels," and swaying from physical exhaustion, she was led away to her room by Mrs. May, in lifeless arms.

J. M. Hall, president of the Bay View Assembly, declared: "It was the most touching scene I ever witnessed. We were all of us—sprung from the same soil—that girl so long deaf beginning to catch the simple harmony of the music. She swayed like a reed at the end of the violin, and her face was so much emotion spread into the human face as I saw in her's when she heard the music."

response of feeling to external elements than the average human being has. Miss Keller's fingers will recognize an old friend, whom she has not met for ten years, by the hand clasp. She can feel the sound of the vibrations of the floor on which she stands. Her mental faculties are more keenly alert to these strange manifestations, which the senses of average folks are never conscious of. So that when she first felt the physical sensation of the violin vibrations and attuned herself more and more carefully to differentiate, she was not long in arousing whatever auditory power was left to her. And the fact that she can now catch the harmony like the voices of singing angels proves that "There are myriads of sounds in the universe which are never heard by the human ear. Its range is very wide. And there are many—some either too low or too high for the human ear to catch. Yet these other sounds have an equally important place in the world of tone. You have seen the experiment where a flame within a glass chimney can be almost extinguished by the rapid vibrations of a shrill violin note. ## Wear BRIGHT COLORS When You GO HUNTING

Wear white or bright colored clothes when you go hunting. They will not make the deer or the ducks any easier to bring down, but they may prevent your being killed or seriously injured by some fellow hunter.

Each year sees an increasing number of hunters shot through before mistakes for game in the dim, uncertain light of the woods. Sensible sportsmen minimize the danger of such accidents by wearing red hats or red sweaters or scarlet coats. Even a red handkerchief placed over the cap or tied around the neck will help prevent being mistaken for a deer by some over-careless hunter.

The province of Manitoba in Canada has a law requiring hunters to wear white coats or sweaters, and Saskatchewan insists that those who hunt big game must wear complete outer suit and cap of white. Experienced sportsmen say that the wearing of white or bright colors does not interfere in the slightest degree with the success of a hunt, while it is an invaluable way of preventing accidents.

Owing to the great amount of damage which thoughtless hunters have done to life and property, hunting in most parts of America is beginning to be carefully regulated by law. Vermont, Ohio, Oregon and several other States require hunters to be licensed whether residents of the State or not. Maine and New Jersey set the example of States which prohibit the use of silencers on firearms. The hunter also incurs a fine or let-down a bar without repeating it in Connecticut is liable to be deprived of his license privilege for two years.

How to Make a FARMHOUSE Efficient and COMFORTABLE

Even the house in which the farmer and his family live is beginning to feel the effects of the new scientific methods which are working such a revolution in agriculture. Although the farmhouse is the very center of rural life, it is often inconvenient, uncomfortable, inefficient and even unhealthy. But now increased attention is beginning to be given to the problem of reorganizing the farmhouse.

According to Director L. H. Bailey, of the Cornell College of Agriculture, there are twelve cardinal points to be borne in mind in building a new dwelling for the farm or in remodeling an old one. These are as follows:

1. Plan a waterworks system with a supply coming from an elevated tank in the barn or in the attic, from a pump or tank in the cellar, from a pneumatic cylinder, from a creek or a well or a spring at an elevation above the house, or from a hydro electric.
2. Plan a compact room arrangement that will allow a woman with two or three children to do her work without servants and also to have some time for reading and for social activity.

3. Consider how a hired man may occupy a room which has a separate entrance from the remainder of the house and yet which may be under family control.

4. Plan the addition of outdoor sleeping facilities and provide for a fireplace.

5. Plan a house with an accessible and attractive back door or work entrance.

6. Plan a lighting system either by acetylene gas, electric light, or other means that are now available. Extend this system to the barns, if practicable.

7. Plan a plain water-closet or running room for the women of the family, particularly for the wife and mother. This should be a retreat room that is free from the cares and noise of the remainder of the house, containing perhaps a few books and other means of recreation.

8. Provide an office that shall be the business nucleus of the farm scheme. This office should be of easy access on the first floor of the house rather than in the attic or in the barn. It would be easy to add such an office to almost any farmhouse. It should have an outside entrance as well as connection with the living rooms.

9. Figure out a system of storage rooms that will hold the family supplies and such products as need to be sold or handled from the residence, assuming that the family is six persons and the place a general farm of one hundred acres.

10. Plan the simplest and most compact arrangement of rooms so as to accommodate properly a family of six persons on a farm of one hundred and fifty acres.

11. Devise a system of light power that can be applied to household work, and indicate the kinds of work that may be effected by it. The plan may contemplate a water-power card, a windmill, a gas or hot-air engine or an installation through electric wires.

12. Plan a garden or a yard that shall be a real supplement to the house. This should not be so much for the raising of vegetables and fruits for the household supply as for providing an outdoor place for reading, sitting, dining, and the like. Every family should be seized to get the farmer and his family out of doors, since contact with nature in hours of leisure will add much to the resourcefulness of his life.

How CIVILIZATION Makes Us IMMUNE to Many DISEASES Something to REMEMBER

It is evident to every one, and more especially to those who are in the artificial conditions of city life, that civilization brings a host of diseases in its train. The extremists of the back-to-nature cry have gone so far as to declare that civilization is a disease. But it is only just beginning to be clearly perceived that civilization is its own disease, that it preys upon itself, and that the aim of man is not to be civilized, but to avoid being civilized, though using to the full the opportunities that civilization affords.

Perhaps an illustration may make this quite clear. Malaria is a definite germ disease. It is widely spread over the earth, but not by any means universally spread. For example, it seems to have been unknown among the North American Indians prior to the coming of the Spaniards. As a consequence, when an epidemic of malarial fever strikes an Indian settlement the mortality is tremendous and in some cases an entire village has been swept away, every man, woman and child perishing from the disease. Yet, among the white race, the disease has been so prevalent that it has become one of the common maladies of childhood and is hardly dreaded with regard to its fatal effect. The Spaniards, though living in the most inhospitable region of the world, that in the neighborhood of Cape Horn—fired from a sailor who had a cold in the head because they thought the inside of his head was coming out through his nose.

The white race, therefore, by having had these diseases for many thousands of years has built up an organism that is almost immune, or in other words it has perfected its resistance to a hostile environment in the terms of civilization, living in a badly vented room or apartment with court yards is not a disease, although it may bring diseases, but if several generations are forced to do this it will build up a resistance which will add one more strength to the organism.

Especially is this true in the world of work and civilization. But the very fact of the compulsion of enduring life, although working too hard, has enabled a man or a woman to endure heavy toll and has developed the human race to that extent. Eight or ten hours of continuous toil to a race not accustomed to it would kill it off speedily. The same is true of thinking. The Bushmen and Negroes, for example, can by no means follow a conversation with each other for more than two minutes, and when a white man hears their tongue and tries to talk to them at the end of three or four minutes of questioning or attention in listening they fall to the ground in sheer dizziness and weariness or go temporarily mad under the strain. Yet, under the force of poverty, faithfulness to duty, the desire for fame or some such motive, men have worked all their lives twelve and fourteen hours a day without suffering for it. It is not always easy to see wherein the good may lie in all the evils that the world holds, but this strengthening by the process of immunity is rapidly becoming adopted as one of the main articles of the modern thinker's creed.

What YOUR NAILS TELL About YOU

ALTHOUGH you may not know it, your finger nails will tell an observer more than you know concerning yourself. To one who knows the tendency of the nails, their character and physical condition can be clearly diagnosed, even as you sit talk him to him, says an Italian scientist.

Those who have very long nails have not the same stamina and strength as have those possessed of short, broad nails. Persons with long nails are inclined to have weak chests and lungs, and must be exceedingly careful that they do not contract any lung affection. If the nails are fluted and ribbed, these characteristics are even more marked.

Long nails, as a rule, denote poor circulation. Plenty of outdoor exercise is what such persons need.

If the nails are short and flat at the base, there may be a tendency to heart disease. If the moons at the base of the nails are small, this denotes poor circulation; while, if they are large, the circulation is good. Flat, sunken nails are indicative of nervous troubles. If very short and flat, and particularly if they are white, denotes a tendency to paralysis. Short-nailed persons usually have trouble with the upper half of their body. Long-nailed persons with the lower half.

If the nails are fluted throughout with white spots, it denotes that the patient's nervous system needs a thorough overhauling. Thin nails, as a rule, denote poor health and lack of energy.

Long-nailed persons are, as a rule, calmer and more peaceable than short-nailed individuals. They have a calmer temper and are more gentle. They are very patient; they might play and paint well, and probably have talent for the stage. Such persons are rarely inclined to be visionary and idealistic, and must sometimes come down to earth again with a bump.

Short-nailed individuals, on the other hand, are critical, severe, stubborn. They make most business men; they subject everything to keen analysis. They are quick-tempered and love to debate, and even fight. They are skeptical, and have to be shown before they will believe anything. They have quick tempers, but also forgive easily.

If the nails are broader than they are long, this indicates a very punctious disposition, with a tendency to worry and to interfere with other people's business. If the nails are bitten, this of course denotes a nervous, worrying disposition. A woman with short nails and marked knots on the fingers is usually by a cold and a "naker."

The perfect nail ought to be white and naturally polished; transparent without being too thin; slightly pink and not brittle; length, to the ends of the fingers. Such are the nails of those possessing refinement, correct natural taste and tact.

If there are any black spots on the nails, these denote grief, contention and melancholia, while they last. They are very rarely found, however.

There's MAGIC in These NUMBERS

D. R. ALBERT NEUBERGER, a German mathematician has lately been making some interesting studies of the so-called "magical" properties of certain numbers.

One of the most remarkable series of figures he finds to be 12345678. The surprising relations of the nine figures which result when this number is multiplied by nine and the multiples of nine are shown in the accompanying illustration.

Why Manuel COULDN'T Stay Married.

The Girl Who Kicked the Little ex-King Off His Throne Tells Why the Princess Who Got Him Could Not Keep Him

By Gaby Deslys

London, Oct. 4

YOU ask me, Gaby Deslys, why the marriage of Manuel and his German princess has come to what you in America would call the grand smash-up. To answer this question, I must not only go deep into the psychology of Manuel and of his bride, but I must take into consideration the very peculiar incidents and conditions which poor Manuel encountered in his courtship of the German Princess Augusta of Hohenzollern.

Am I surprised that Manuel's wife refuses to live with him after a few weeks' trial? But not rather would I be surprised if she did continue to be his wife. They are psychologically unfit to live together. Manuel is utterly incapable of playing successfully the role of husband. There is no one who knows Manuel better, more intimately, than I do. Who knows his every mood so intimately as I, Gaby Deslys?

When the engagement of this fiery, impulsive, youthful-minded and most poverty-stricken little king to the staid, stolid, unimaginative but fabulously rich Princess Augusta was whispered to me, I was most unhappy, most distressed for myself. But no, but no. Only for my little king. I knew that he would never be happy in what that amusing Anthony Hope calls "double harness." I knew that so perfect a lover as Manuel is could never make a good husband. And, knowing the mind of the German princess and her temperament, or rather her lack of temperament, I knew, also, that Manuel would never be happy and his marriage would be short and unhappy. It is a delightful lover. Yes, he is young for such perfection, but he is not a king, and they learn to accept love in their cradles. But the perfect lover never makes the perfect husband. The perfect lover must be free to love where he pleases. He must not settle down in the bonds of matrimony. At least, not until he is fifty or sixty.

Manuel is the last man in the world to make a marriage of convenience. The fact that he is expected to show devotion to a definite woman, whether he wanted to or not, is just the thing to send him flying from her even though it cost him a throne or a fortune. We have a saying in Southern France, where I was born, that love dies when the man is tied.

Manuel, as I said when his engagement was told me, is not the man to kiss, to embrace to order. Embracing matrimony and embracing his wife are two different things. The minute Manuel found himself married, he began to chafe. He could not embrace his wife with the ardor with which he had embraced his fiancée. Whenever occasion required him to display affection, he unconsciously turned cold and rigid. Where he should have pressed forward he unconsciously stopped back.

Alas, poor Manuel, he could not help it. The whole thing was psychological. Then again, Manuel is very impatient of control. He is stubborn, and the more he is opposed, the more stubborn and impatient he becomes.

He is generous. Ah, who knows better than I the generous nature of this little king! It is his nature to desire to shower the one he loves with gifts. He must always be the lordly benefactor. To receive material favors from a woman would sear his soul. The favor of her kisses and caresses, ah, yes, these he accepts, because he loves, because he is, after all, a man. But in return he gives of his largesse. And oh, so long he has had none to give.

"The Princess's peasants rode Manuel into her village on a rail," says Gaby. "It was their custom. And now they may ride him OUT on a rail!"

How, then, could Manuel be happy with a wife to whom he owed all his worldly wealth? He is not, or, what you would call analitically, he does not know his own peculiar traits, but they affect him strongly subconsciously, and the feeling that he has received material favors from his wife would make him hate her. And my little king has never been able to hide his feelings. He is but a child in many ways.

He must always feel that he is the king pin, the one who leads. He can not stand dictation. Fear, it makes him so brittle to be dictated to.

But yes, he can be led. If the woman has the sagacity of the serpent, if she leads through love or through some emotion which he mistakes for love.

Could Manuel settle down to play the part of a phlegmatic, unimpassioned, non-resentful husband? No, but no. Marry him to the Princess Augusta who simply wanted to found a family and, perhaps, become queen, is like making a high strung racehorse with a steady, plodding workhorse.

But this is not all. Study the facial characteristics of the king and his princess. She is strong almost masculine in her strength. She would do her duty if it killed her, but she can not love, save on a material fashion, whereas Manuel puts love beyond all else. Love is an art with him, and, alas, the princess has never learned the A B C of this art. Had the princess known even the first principles of love as an art she would never have permitted Manuel to be made ridiculous.

The vanity of man can stand much, but it can never stand ridicule. The princess, being, oh, so foolish, so lacking in finesse, insisted that Manuel take part in all the funny peasant customs that the members of her family have encouraged in their followers for centuries.

But oh, how my heart ached for Manuel when the vulgar peasants of Silesia tossed him in a blanket in the public square and then rode him around on a rail, throwing flowers and sweet cakes at him! But think of it! Riding Manuel on a rail! What torture for a proud man. Could love live under such conditions? But no.

Manuel wanted to be married as a king. The princess agreed to that, but only because she hoped some day to be queen. Manuel wanted the settlements made so that his share of the princess's wealth would be absolutely his own. But the princess, fearing he might become too independent, scorned and refused such a condition. She would not pay her future husband's debts. Ah, foolish princess! If she had ordered her lawyers to pay these debts privately, so that Manuel might know who was his benefactor, she might have kept his love. If the settlements had been made as coming from her father, Manuel's pride would have been spared. But no. The princess had to put her finger in the pie, had to "butt in," you would say in America, and Manuel felt the halter galling him even before the marriage.

All these things I have written about are the big things back of this very bad smash-up. Oh, the many, many trifling small things. But I have not mentioned it. It is the small things, the petty things, that cause the complete breakdown of the best and the best of us. Let us explain.

Manuel is sensitive to color, to sound. Certain shades of red make him, oh, so irritable, so out of humor with the world. But greens and blues and pale yellows make him happy. The Princess Augusta knew this, but she said: "How foolish, how womanly to be angry with a color. I adore red, and she had her bouddoir done over in just the shade of red that Manuel hates. And she had several red gowns made! The morning after the wedding, when she poured his coffee for him, Manuel's soul became irritable, for the china was red, and the bride's negligee was a red chiffon."

When Manuel got up from the table and threw his cap on the floor, did the princess blame herself? But no. She scolded Manuel for his bad temper.

Manuel does not like Wagnerian music. He loves the lighter Italian and French music. He adores American ragtime. The princess plays badly, and always the rumbling music of Wagner.

Was it any wonder that Manuel fled to Paris for a two days' respite from so much matrimony? His trip made the princess very angry. She thought he had fled to join some Paris beauty, when he only wanted to get away from the bouddoir, the red china and the piano.

The princess is a careful housewife.

Manuel does not like to have his sitting room or his study disturbed. He likes always to find everything where he left it. The princess adores order. She would not let him put anything out of order. When he threw his cap on the floor, she was angry. When he threw his cap on the floor, she was angry.

She would run and pick them up. She cleaned out his desk every morning. Oh, how her order fretted him! "Could love live under such conditions? But no. 'Pouf. Why, should I be? She made her bed, let her lie in it."

The Proper Way to Announce Marriage Engagements

By MRS. FRANK LEARNED, Author of "The Etiquette of New York To-day."

IN many of the older countries a betrothal is a serious rite, conducted with a certain solemnity. It is considered binding and is celebrated with the assembling and rejoicing of relations and friends. Gifts are bestowed almost as freely on the bride-elect as for a wedding.

There is no custom of the sort in our own society, although something might be learned from the ancient and dignified method of recognizing a betrothal ceremoniously. An engagement is of vital importance and, like marriage, is not to be entered into lightly. Young people sometimes form engagements too easily, without sufficient thought, and are ready to break them for slight reasons.

Although the days of an engagement are full of happiness and hope and plans for the future, there should be recognition of duties to the world and not a selfish and unwholesome absorption in each other.

A man's duty is to state frankly to a girl's parents everything about his prospects, circumstances and his ability to support a wife and ask their consent to the engagement.

It is optional when the engagement shall be announced, but it is best to have it made known without unnecessary delay, provided the young girl's parents have consented. Of course the initiative in the announcement is taken by the young girl's family. A man may not make known his engagement, except to his parents, until the young girl's family is ready to announce it.

The proper and the recognized custom in the world of society in regard to announcing an engagement is that the two mothers should write notes to the older members of their respective families and to the older friends, and that the engaged pair should write to friends of their own age. It is, however, especially kind and thoughtful of young people to write to the older relations, instead of allowing that duty to their mothers.

It is advisable to make a list of the friends and relations who are supposed to be interested in the news of the engagement and to decide to whom shall be delegated the duty to write the special notes. All of the notes must be sent out together, otherwise some sensitive person may feel offended if not informed promptly. Of course, there is no formula for notes of the sort. They are brief, simple and natural in expression, and, necessarily, they vary according to intimacy or friendship. Words of this sort may be used, with the required beginning and termination: "I wish you to be among the first to know of my engagement to ——" or, if a mother is writing, "It is obvious that the terms are engaged."

It should be distinctly understood that telephone messages, decisions in engagement are not good form and not customary among those who wish to do things with delicacy and dignity. No matter what others may say about the possibility of making an announcement at a luncheon, dinner or other entertainment, it is not correct. It must be remembered that we have not a betrothal ceremonial, and there is a decided lack of delicacy, propriety and delicacy in making an announcement before assembled guests and before the young people themselves.

The engagement ring is worn when the engagement is announced. The ring need not be a solitaire. Colored stones are used, usually in combination with diamonds, the sapphire being a favorite. Much depends on a man's means as to the choice of a ring. A girl's own good sense will not allow her to receive what her fiancé cannot afford to give.

If the family of the young man live at a distance it is their duty to write to the bride-elect, expressing their pleasure and interest in the engagement. The future mother-in-law of the bride-elect may invite her to come for a visit. Of course, it is generally understood that it is not allowable for a girl to make a visit at the house of her future husband unless invited by his mother personally or by letter and very explicitly. A message sent through another person cannot be considered a proper invitation. Strict etiquette is safe in this regard. The more punctilious a girl or a man may be in their relationship toward each family the better they will be liked. A strict rule is that young people who are engaged may not travel about alone nor do they go to public places, then free restaurants alone. Wherever they may be well-bred young people are careful not to be conspicuous by demonstrative attentions to each other. It must be remembered that

The New Figure

Lady Duff-Gordon Describes the Return of the "Stomach Shape" Made Famous by Ten Eyck and Holbein.

LADY DUFF-GORDON, the famous "Lucile" of London, and foremost creator of fashions in the world, writes each week the fashion article for this newspaper, presenting all that is newest and best in styles for well-dressed women.

Lady Duff-Gordon's Paris establishment brings her into close touch with that centre of fashion.

Lady Duff-Gordon's American establishment is at Nos. 37 and 39 West Fifty-seventh street, New York.

By Lady Duff-Gordon ("Lucile")

HAVE we discovered a new figure or are we returning to an old one? Alas! even in figures there is nothing new under the sun. The figure which we are heralding as new is simply the figure handed down to us by Ten Eyck and Holbein. The ladies of those days frankly accepted the one whose soul is above the subtle art of draping must also use the pad, for it is only the most subtle and skilful artist who can simulate this Holbein stomach unaided.

But, of course, the well-liked straight figure will also continue to be with us. The smart woman may display her straight silhouette in the morning, when she is wearing her tailored costume; her Ten Eyck figure in the afternoon, when she wears her draped gowns, and in the evening again she may present her no-figure appearance when she wears the clinging gown, which demands no corsets. In a way it is all a matter of choice.

This week I am showing you one of the new evening wraps developed in that most delightful and expensive of fabrics, the new brocade chiffon. This coat seems to be cut from one piece, so graceful and intricate are its folds, but of course this is not so. The sleeves are, however, cut in with the body of the wrap and are very wide and edged with silver fox. The long boa is also of the fox. The chiffon, by the way, is an exquisite tone of grape.

I particularly like the gray green satin gown for receptions and other afternoon affairs which I am showing you here. The skirt has the new knee band, which holds the fulness in place in the back. The muff and the hat are of the satin. The muff is banded with brown fox. There is a charming simplicity about this whole costume which pleases me greatly. The one stunning effect is given by the violet and silver girdle. The hat is small, but has brim enough knowledgeed that they had stomachs and were unafraid to let the world into their secret. Since those days of frankness, however, the stomach has become taboo in polite society. Everybody knows that everybody else has a stomach, but the word itself is never mentioned.

This extreme delicacy has reached its height in England, where, with delightful lack of logic, the woman of fashion will discuss everything under the sun, no matter how broad it may be, but never will she even intimate that she has a stomach. This attitude of the age was delightfully satirized by my good friend James Barrie in his play "Little Mary," which in early English would have been called "My Stomach."

The straight front age was the logical outcome of the feeling about stomachs. We assumed the attitude that if we must not speak of them we must change our figures so that this part of our anatomy did not show. And from that day to this we have attempted to be as flat as a sheet of paper.

But the coming in of the new silhouette has brought us face to face again with our stomachs, and with the new gowns if one has not enough flesh to give the required figure, one must wear a little bustle in front. Let me say right here, however, that the draped skirts which create the Holbein figure do not require a pad if they are properly draped. The amateur dressmaker or to shade the eyes most bewitchingly. The bird perched smartly on the front strikes an unusual note.

And here is one of my favorite morning models. I am always glad when I have to create a walking costume in corduroy. There is something so wearable about this fabric and yet so sumptuous. This skirt has an odd little turned-up panel in the front, which buttons on each side just below the girdle. The coat has the square lines that are pre-eminently chic, and both the skirt and the coat are banded with moleskin.

The small pale yellow velvet hat has only a band of the mole around the crown, with two ends showing at the side.

Speaking of new figures, I am reminded of some of the new fabrics.

Tinsel-patterned embroidered ninnos are to be the rage of this season, just as they were of the last—only more so, I should say, for truly they are lovelier than ever.

The quaint thing about them—and of many other of the new fabrics, too—is that they bring together in an entirely incoherent but also exceedingly effective fashion the deliciously dainty patterns of the Pompadour period and the world-old and wonderful colorings of the East. And so it is that you will find little shadowy bouquets scattered at regular (or irregular) intervals between weirdly entwined and colored devices. And each one will seem so superlatively desirable that you will not know which to choose as the fabric for your tea gown or coat, your theatre wrap or your evening dress.

Personally I am making frequent use of these particular and perfect fabrics for the fashioning of tea gowns and boudoir wraps, and you can perhaps imagine that I have found positive inspiration in, for example, one-ninnos whose exquisite and elusive blue is interwoven with a shadowy device of azalla pinks and yellows, and then a touch or two of vivid emerald green, while over all there shimmers a brocade of silver in a design of trailing foliage and flowers.

And then again imagine—and love—a deeply purple ninnon, where blossoms some of the faintest blue, others of a strange soft green, and still again some in vivid orange, their petals all alike, outlined with a shimmering tracery of silver, while in between cluster leaves wrought in silver and showing purple veining.

There is a new shade of old gold, too, which makes a beautiful background for full-blown roses worked in shaded tinsels, each thread being so twisted that the whole flower stands out in bold and beautiful relief, and, at some little distance, looks almost as if it were studded with myriads of tiny many-colored jewels.

On a pale gold colored ninnon, too, a shower of little golden roses is lightly scattered, while here and there one giant bloom shines out, iridescent, exquisite in tinsel threads, shading from silver to green and from blue to purple.

Another new make in ninnos is of special texture and strength, so that it may better bear the burden of a broad device of gold or silver, such as is usually only seen on a heavier satin ground.

Tall, palm-like fronds of silver, shining out against a blue as bright and beautiful as the Mediterranean Sea under the summer sun, is one example of the patterning and the possibilities of this new ninnon, while gold blazoned on black or emerald green will also and surely find many admirers and wearers.

The vanity of man can stand such a trial. The king, who had been so vain in his princes, being, oh, so foolish, so lacking in finesse, insisted that Manuel take part in the ceremony. He had even asked the members of her family have an engraved in their followers for centuries. Manuel when the vogue peasants of St. Marigran kissed him in a blanket in the street, he was so happy that he fell down on a rail, throwing flowers and sweet kisses to the people. Manuel on a rail? What torture for a proud man. Could love live under such a trial?

Manuel wanted to be married as a king. The princess agreed to that, but she wanted to be married to Manuel, the queen. Manuel wanted the settlements made so that his share of the princess's inheritance would be paid to him. The princess, fearing he might become a fool, insisted that Manuel accept such a condition. She would not pay her future husband's debts. An foolish king would not have accepted such a condition. She would not pay those debts privately, so that Manuel might not know who was his creditor. Manuel agreed to that. If the settlements had been made as coming from her father, Manuel's pride would have been hurt. The princess had to put her finger in the scales. Manuel was a king of America, and Manuel felt the bitter galling him even before the marriage.

Manuel was a king, and he had to pay the big bills back of this very bad smash-up. Oh, the many, many stinging blows that Manuel had to take.

It is the small things, the petty sting that cause the most irritation of the soul. Manuel had to pay the big bills, but he had to pay the small ones, too. But
